WILL VACATE HER MANSION

Mrs. Bergdoll, Mother of Draft Dodger, Calls Philadelphia 'Terrible Place.'

Declaring Philadelphia is a "terrible city to live in," Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll says she is disposing of all of her property except her former residence, Twenty-ninth street, below Girard avenue, says a Philadelphia dispatch.

She will live again soon in the Twenty-ninth street dwelling. She gives as her reason for wanting to move from the Bergdoll mansion, Fifty-second street and Wynnefield avenue, that she is being "harassed to death." It was in this palatial home her son, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, recently was arrested for dodging the draft.

Alienists engaged to prove Grover is crazy may not be allowed to testify. This became known at Fort Jay, Governors Island, N. Y., where he is awaiting court-martial for desertion.

The army lunacy board, appointed to investigate his counsel's claim that he is feeble-minded and should not be tried, will meet in a few days to decide whether it is authorized to hear expert testimony.

Re-Examination of Prisoner.

In case it is not, the board will complete its work with a re-examination of the prisoner, according to Col. Elmer A. Dean, chairman. The other members are Col. B. F. Duval and Maj. A. P. Baker, an alienist.

The Bergdoll alienists are Dr. M. S. Gregory and Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, of New York.

To the witnesses summoned, it is believed, will be added Owen D. Sherry, proprietor of a hotel at Hagerstown, Md., and his wife, said to have identified Bergdoll from a photograph as having stayed at their hotel during part of the time he was dodging the Federal authorities.

Mrs. Bergdoll Also a Dodger.

Mrs. Bergdoll is alleged to be a dodger herself when it comes to paying city taxes, although she denies it.

Records further show for the last ten years she has been slow in paying taxes on her property. The city solicitor was required to sue her repeatedly before she peeled off a few greenbacks from her roll to settle obligations.

At present, Mrs. Bergdoll owes the city treasury $11.92 in taxes on the lots and $3.76 in school taxes. The latter delinquency dates back from 1917, and with costs will be increased by at least $1.50 when finally settled.

She failed to pay the $2.76 tax on a lot at Twenty-sixth street and Susquehanna avenue, one of many properties she acquired at the death of her husband, a millionaire brewer.

The city taxes she owes even antedate the trifling school tax. It was in 1909 she passed up two separate taxes of $5.51 each on the lot at Catherine and Toney streets, in the Thirtieth ward. This tax is a nuisance tax, and was levied because she failed to keep the sidewalk in repair. Judgment was entered in Common Pleas Court No. 3 last January 7 against the Thirtieth ward lot.

She Denies the Charges.

Mrs. Bergdoll denied she failed to pay the taxes on the lot at Twenty-sixth street and Susquehanna avenue and said she had tax receipts to prove this.

She declares she knows nothing of the nuisance tax levied at Catherine and Toney streets. "This property," said Mrs. Bergdoll, "was transferred to me in payment of a debt. A house stood on it. I tried to get somebody to make repairs, but nobody would do the work for me. It finally got into such bad condition it had to be torn down. The way I am being treated is awful."

Mrs. Bergdoll intimated the house at Catherine and Toney streets was wilfully defaced. She added she would look up the taxes in both cases and pay them.

Since the arrest of Grover, the Wynnefield avenue mansion has been almost deserted. Mrs. Bergdoll is in New York most of the time, to be near her son.

The Twenty-ninth street house is unpretentious. It is a brick structure within a few squares of the brewery, founded by Mrs. Bergdoll's husband.

PLEA FOR COAL FROM HUNGARY

"We Will Barter for Food," Says the Prime Minister.

This is the appeal to America, according to dispatches from Budapest, made by Karolyi Vissar, prime minister of Hungary, in the name of the starving children of his nation.

"Will the United States help us to turn our mines, fields, factories, railroads, rivers and human labor into food and clothing for our famishing families?"

"Hungary is a rich and capable country. She must not become a mendicant nation. We want to help ourselves, but our money cannot buy the necessities of life. Give us coal and we will start our factories. Give us raw material of any kind and we will quickly and skillfully turn it into useful goods. We will barter for food."

"Women, holding babies in their arms, kneel to me in the streets asking for the help I am powerless to give. Men in rags and too weak from hunger to stand upright, beseech me to save them from madness by finding them work. I turn them away for I cannot wave a magic wand to give them help."

"I visit houses that have no windows left, no heat, no food—where whole families live huddled like animals in caves. I see precious children who can never grow to healthy maturity because their bones are bent and their minds deformed from actual starvation."

"America has fed and befriended us beyond our power to express gratitude. Will America put us to work for her? Our women and children are dying like flies because our men cannot earn food and clothing for them. Will America send businessmen to open her factories, work our mines, re-animate our rivers and help us to our feet again for our children's sake?"

BELGIUM NEAR WAR RECOVERY

Industry Rapidly Gaining Normal Status, Report Shows.

(Public Ledger Service, Special Cable Dispatch.)

(By CARL W. ACKERMAN.)

London, March 27.—All Europe is talking about the splendid and rapid readjustment and reconstruction noticeable in Belgium today.

Everywhere I traveled on the continent I hear about Belgium. The March issue of the Contemporary Review contains an article by Emile Cammaerts in which he declares that "among the food industries, the sugar factories, depending mainly upon beets, have already exceeded the pre-war production. Sugar, with glass and coal are the few articles which Belgium is already able to export."

Taking all the industries, he says, statistics show that 76 per cent of the pre-war personnel is at present employed with the building trades and food industries running at 86 and 89 per cent of the 1914 personnel. His comparative figures show that while the per head production has slightly decreased a considerable proportion of this decrease is due to repairs being made in mines, factories, railroads and canals. Regarding textile manufacturing, in December last 1,132,000 spindles were active compared with 1,975,000 before the war. In the mines resumption of work is complete.

M. Cammaerts states that Belgium passed through three stages in readjustment, the stage of deliverance, the stage of readjustment, the stage of recovery and adds "Belgium today is recovering."

The ghost eluded Sergeant Forbes on the chin. Forbes kicked him in the shin. "Pinched for bamboozling," Forbes said when he looked up the ghost who alleged he was born in Ireland.

6-HOUR DAY AID TO LONGEVITY

Gompers Says Excessive Work Creates Poisons of Fatigue.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., told his Bible class that the six-hour day would be an aid to Satan, because the latter would find work for idle hands.

Samuel Gompers says that the more fresh air, the more recreation and relaxation, the stronger the mind becomes to withstand temptation to do those things he should not do.

If the effects observed upon the laboring man by the shortening of his working day is the work of Satan, then Satan has certainly been misrepresented in the past, says Gompers.

What Hours Mean.

"Work a man 18 hours a day and he will stand up under it for about three years; work him 14 and he may be able to stand it for about six years; a 12-hour day will send a man to the scrap heap in eight years; a 10-hour day in 12 years; an 8-hour day in 35 years, while a 6-hour day would permit him to work until a ripe old age."

Rockefeller's money works for him 24 hours out of the 24, but human beings cannot do likewise, says Gompers, without detriment to mind, morals and body.

Excessive hours of work create the poison of fatigue, and the average years of life in which the worker can be effective are decreased and his life shortened.

When the cigarmakers secured the eight-hour day the average years at death of the workers in that trade were 31. That was in 1886. Now the average death age is nearly 50. The wives of the cigarmakers are also benefited. Their average age at death has increased from 31 to 52.

Capt. Ennalls Waggaman Decorated By French Government for His Work At St. Nazaire During World War

Ennalls Waggaman, son of the late John F. Waggaman and member of the Waggaman & Brawner real estate firm is receiving congratulations from his host of friends over his recent decoration by the French government for "eminent services" rendered while overseas.

Captain Waggaman was overseas one year and was located for the most part at St. Nazaire. He has been named an officer of the Academy. The decree, which is dated at Paris, November 20, 1919, is signed by L. Lafferre, minister of public instruction and fine arts.

The decoration which Mr. Waggaman has received is the "Palme Universitaire." Following is a brief history of these decorations:

"The French decorations 'Palme Universitaire' were instituted in 1868, and are now of two classes, 'Officier de l'Instruction Publique' and 'Officier d'Academie'."

"They are awarded on the recommendation of the Minister of Education to those who have, especially distinguished themselves by their eminent services in connection with teaching in the universities and colleges, and to learned, literary and scientific men who have done particularly brilliant work."

"The decoration consists of a wreath of laurel and palm suspended from a violet ribbon by means of a ring. 'Officier de l'Instruction Publique' wears the decoration in gold with a rosette on the ribbon, while 'Officier d'Academie' has it in silver with no rosette."

Captain Waggaman lives at 1712 R street northwest.

SLEEP MALADY LINKED TO FLU

Sleeping sickness, the mysterious malady responsible for the death of Mrs. Charles B. Timberlake, last Sunday, is an "independent disease of infectious origin," according to conclusions reached by the department of medical information of the league of Red Cross Societies at Geneva, Switzerland.

"Encephalitis lethargica" is the real name of the disease, according to Dr. Thomas R. Brown, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, chief of the department.

It is found in districts wherein influenza is prevalent, Dr. Brown declares. Many authorities believe the diseases are related.

Dr. Brown declares that the disease is really not a sleeping sickness, although a state of somnolence or sleepiness develops. Headaches, fever and a swelling of the glands follow in line, he says, and usually the victim dies of weakness or a secondary infection.

Although the disease, in its clinical features, resembles the African sleeping sickness caused by sting of the tsetse fly, Dr. Brown declares that there is no reason for it to be called by the same name.
